

My mother is an excellent example of a good citizen. She is kind and caring, she votes, she helps our school, and overall she is a good influence on our society. I will discuss how my mom is helpful to our community, and how she is a wonderful citizen, who displays citizenship in every thing she does.

First, my mother is kind and caring. She is always willing to help out a neighbor in need, or a friend experiencing rough times, no matter what the problem is. If every citizen in our community built a framework of people who could help them that way, with a no-questions-asked policy, we would have one of the strongest, most solid communities anywhere.

Next, my mother votes. She carefully considers her vote before writing it on the ballot. She also doesn't vote solely Democrat or Republican based on her political party. Instead she votes for the candidates that she thinks will be the most beneficial to our community. She knows her vote is important, so she always heads to the ballot box when it is time to vote.

Finally, my mother helps out at school. She is one of the first moms to sign up to volunteer for school-wide events, even since I entered kindergarten. She has been a room-mom for many years, a chaperone on a good portion of the field trips, and has volunteered at Civil War Day and Immigration Day.

My mother is clearly a good citizen. She displays citizenship in everything she does, from showing kindness and caring, to voting in state and national elections, as well as helping to improve our educational system by volunteering at school-events.
